LeBron and Bronny compete on the same stage

Los Angeles Lakers coach JJ Redick has already started thinking about LeBron James and Bronny James becoming the first father-son duo in NBA history to share the court together this season, but he says he will involve both players when it comes to actually putting a plan in place for when and how that moment happens. "We obviously have staff and we've gotten of what that might said Wednesday conference with Lakers basketball operations Rob Pelinka. "But we to anything. And discussion to be had once we're all together with Bronny and LeBron, too. They should be a part of that discussion as well."

LeBron is 39 and entering his 22nd season.
Bronny is 19 and entering his rookie year after being selected by L.A. with the 55th pick in second round after playing one season at USC.

The legend continues

While the regular season doesn't begin until Oct. 22 when the Lakers host the Minnesota Timberwolves, Pelinka said the team has already gotten a glimpse of the James bloodline in action during a pick-up game at the practice facility this week.

"[Bronny] got switched onto LeBron, and LeBron took him baseline, up and under off the glass," Pelinka said.

"The words exchanged afterward were probably more challenging than anything else."

LeBron shared some mild-mannered trash talk Wednesday on his Instagram account, posting Pelinka's quote about the father-son pick-up sequence and writing, "Great defense. Better O."
